Patrolling beefed up on railway tracks between Tambaram & Villupuram

Armed railway protection force (RPF) and government railway police (GRP) personnel will use trolleys to comb the railway tracks between Tambaram and Villupuram stations at regular intervals from Sunday.

The decision was taken following an attempt to derail the Rock Fort Express train plying between Kumbakonam and Chennai Egmore on Saturday. According to police, open line patrolling has also been initiated by the local police near Sithani village and few other remote areas.

Armed RPF and GRP men will man the railway tracks between Tambaram and Villupuram on trolleys.

The accident was averted on Saturday morning due to the timely alert signal given by T Rajasekar, the guard of Salem-Chennai Egmore Express, who heard a blast and knew something was wrong. He immediately alerted the Perani railway station master, who flashed a 'caution order' to the driver of Rockfort Express. The driver managed to stop the train just 200 ft before the spot where the track had been blown up.

Police foil major Maoist strike in State

The State police foiled a Maoist plan to carry out a major attack either against a politician or a police officer, when they raided a naxal den in Shapur village near Gulbarga of Karnataka on Sunday and seized police uniforms, an AK-47 assault rifle, another automatic weapon, meant for use by a naxal action team, five ICOMs and a GPS tracker set.

Police said the den was raided following the arrest of Chandrasekhar Gorebale, a member of the Karnataka State Committee of the CPI Maoist at Aija village of Mahabubnagar district in the State in the early hours of Sunday.

There have been two instances of Maoist cadres wearing police uniforms carrying out assassinations in Andhra Pradesh. Two former legislators, S. Chinna Reddy (Anantapur) and Budda Vengal Redy (Kurnool), were killed by Maoists in late 90s.

Uranium making Punjab kids retarded

Confirming Punjab's worst fear, a resounding document from Germany's Microtrace Mineral Lab has revealed that hair samples of 80% of 149 neurologically disabled children, mainly from southern Malwa region, have high levels of uranium.

The report from a world-renowned laboratory also establishes the presence of dangerous heavy metals in water, questioning high use of chemicals to support state's green revolution.

Presence of the radioactive element has strengthened doubts that depleted uranium (DU) used by American tanks in Iraq and Afghanistan travelled through air, reaching not just the region but Delhi as well.

No let-up in Srinagar protests

Even as the government ordered two parallel investigations into the death of a Srinagar boy on Friday, protests continued here for third consecutive day. Scores of people were injured in clashes as the police imposed “undeclared curfew” in several areas on Sunday.

While the police blamed stone-throwers for the death of Tufail Ahmad Mattoo, 18, during anti-government protests, residents and relatives accused the police and the CRPF of knocking him down.

On Sunday, youth took on the police and engaged them in stone throwing at Bemina and Batmaloo.

At least a dozen people were injured and the situation remained tense. Authorities imposed severe restrictions in most of the downtown areas under five police stations.

Heavily armoured vehicles with gun totting policemen patrolled the streets and barricades were erected on several roads blocking civilian movement.

Though the police denied having imposed curfew, residents claimed that the CRPF asked them to “stay indoors or face bullets”.

Life came to a standstill in entire Srinagar as a shutdown was observed to protest Mattoo's killing.

Meanwhile, a high-level team of doctors, constituted by the government, is studying autopsy reports and will ascertain whether a shell, bullet or a stone hit Mattoo.
